EDEN WELCOMES YR 7

It's a great pleasure to welcome our new Year 7 students to Eden Girls School. We know you'll enjoy the next 5 years here at Eden! Everyone here will help you grow and develop your skills to become successful 'Ladies, Learners and Leaders'. We wish you every success and happiness with us!

PRINCIPAL SAYS

Reflections on this Term

All praises to the Almighty, Lord of the Worlds and the Master of our fortunes and salutations to our beloved Prophet Muhammad (PBUH), the seal of the Prophets and the guide for all our actions.

Achieving and sustaining excellence

'The will to win, the desire to succeed, the urge to reach your full potential... these are the keys that will unlock the door to personal excellence.' Confucius

I would like to welcome you all to this year's first edition of our school magazine 'The Edonian'. As you flick through the pages I hope you are able to read and revel in the many accomplishments achieved by our very special students who aspire for excellence in all that they do, whether in the classroom or through enrichment activities.

The new Year 7 students have made a great start to the school year as have the other year groups who have coped very well with the challenges of relocating into our new 21st century facilities and accommodation. The new building includes purpose built classrooms that contain teaching walls, 7 stunning specialist Science Laboratories, a Food Technology room, purpose built dining facilities, ablution facilities and a new Main Hall. The building development is improving year on year and I hope that each year students will enjoy the new facilities which are designed to support them for excellence in learning and towards outstanding outcomes.

Keeping our students safe, happy and well

"The real test of good manners is to be able to put up with bad manners pleasantly."
— Kahlil Gibran

A high quality faith education aims to deliver not only great learners but well- mannered students who are recognised by their positivity, patience, tolerance and exceptionally good manners. Our Edonians are flourishing into well- mannered young women who are kind, thoughtful and considerate ladies, learners and leaders as they deal with the complications of growing up and dealing with change. The school dedicates and invests much time into the building of character through leadership opportunities and fundraising events so that students' civic responsibilities are nurtured. This term the girls have already managed to raise monies for Macmillan Coffee Morning, Children in Need and the Food Bank. They are also working tirelessly on the following:

- Year 7 & Year 8 – Gift Campaign: Winter Warmth pack for 17 Homeless individuals – through St Mungo's a local charity that runs a shelter in Tottenham Hale
- Year 9 & Year 10 – Gift Campaign: Toiletries for 30 women seeking refuge from Domestic Violence and Trafficking – through Salvation Army that runs a local safe house for these women
- Whole School – Fundraising campaign for Syrian Refugees: Quirky Jumper day (Fri 16 Dec) non-uniform day (£2) and bake sale.

A huge thank you to our generous Edonians and parents who always give with such generosity!

Looking After our Staff and Community

'Kindness is the language which the deaf can hear and the blind can see.' Mark Twain

We are very pleased to recognise that our school community has grown to 350 students and our staff team is now 48 teaching and non- teaching staff. EDEN MAKES NATIONAL HEADLINES - AGAIN!

Students from Eden made national headlines again this year after taking part in "Silence in the Square" at Trafalgar Square, this November.

The girls and Ms Mayet were paying their respects at the memorial when they were blind sided by the tens of photographers who couldn't get enough of the students.

They made headlines and featured across The Guardian, The Telegraph, BuzzFeed and The Mirror to name a few.

Well done! This is a great way of promoting our British Muslim Identity.

commemorate the moment on November 11, 1918 the First World War ended. Across the British Isles people paid tribute at memorials and in schools, offices and other public places. Prince Harry laid a wreath at the National Memorial Arboretum in Staf-representing men who died on the first day of the Somme, were laid on College Green. Hundreds attended the Royal British Legion's Silence in the Square in Trafalgar Square, London, where poppies were laid in the fountains. At the Cenotaph in Whitehall, the singer Cerys Matthews read the

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

'Never give up, and follow your dreams.'

Never give up, and follow your dreams

To commemorate Black History Month at Eden, we had fantastic performances from the Museum of London, visit us and perform raps, mini skits, moving stories and more.

Black History Month recognises, rewards and celebrates the contribution made to our society over many years by the African and Caribbean communities. It is an opportunity for us all to recognise the incredible achievements of successful African and Caribbean men and women from all professions.

The members took on different roles of many inspirational figures from history, and shared with us their hardships through life, and how they overcame it. They showed us how the Black community had fought for a change in society, and overcame the many difficulties they faced.

MACMILLAN COFFEE MORNING

Currently there are 2.5 people in the UK living with cancer, and Macmillan wants to be there for every single one of them.

Each year, since 1990, Macmillan has got together with worldwide partnerships and organisations to create the biggest fundraising event for people facing cancer. On the 30th of September, anyone anywhere can host a coffee morning, with baked goods, friends and raising money for a great cause. And this year it was Eden's turn to get involved.

In true Edonian spirit, as a school it is pretty safe to say that we are a fan of supporting not only local community, but great causes. For this fundraiser, it was Year 7's time to shine, for which they provided all the cakes, cookies and competition to be sure that the year group strived in making the most money for charity as possible.

Parents were invited and in the end, Eden made £276!

HOURLY OF CODE 2016

Pupils in Years 7 & 8 took part in the International Hour of Code this December.

So what is Hour of Code you may be thinking? Hour of Code is a world wide initiative started in America. It aims are to promote coding in schools in a fun and engaging way.

Year 7 created frozen fractals with Elsa from Frozen and year 8 programmed their own sports game.

"I love coding, I feel like I can't wait to try more next term with Python"

Taking the Lead

YEAR 8

For leadership day, the Year 8's went to The Copper Box Arena, a multi-sport venue used for the 2012 Summer Olympics, located in the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park. Competing in form groups and earning points for their hub, competitive spirits were at their best. Under the leadership of the learning coordinators, each form played basketball, football, badminton and goal-shooting and played against other forms, comparing scores and winning games.

"I liked the fact that we spent our day in forms, and my sports skills definitely developed."

YEAR 9

This leadership day had Eden in a buzz (as usual!) as year 9's were busy bees about business. We were lucky enough to have different speakers come in from a business company called 'My Bnk,' they taught us about finance and how we could spend our money in a more efficient manner. We also learnt how to tell the difference between real and fake £5 notes as well as other skills which would be useful to us in the future.

Since this leadership was all about business, we had a challenge for year 9's to raise £10 per student for the school by starting a campaign. There were various creative ideas, from sweets and treats to Oreo milkshakes!

Overall, everyone enjoyed this Leadership Day very much, and we thank the staff for organising a day like this for us!

STUDENT SHURA 2016/17

Just like last year, and the year before, students from each form have bravely put themselves forward to receive this year's place in Eden's Student Shura. Students from each form volunteered for the spaces and spent weeks of campaigning for their votes. There were posters, cakes, presentations and fliers decorating the school to try and gain those all-important votes. Ultimately, four students from each form went through to the final and had a chance to prove to their classes, for the last time, why their colleagues should vote for them. An assembly was then held and the Student Shura members were announced and awarded their honourable positions!

Kausiha Kangasuthan from 8D, has told us about her Student Shura campaign:

'I ran for the position as Student Shura so I can have the opportunity to use my talents to the benefit of the school making it a place for everyone to enjoy. I used various campaigning strategies and used a phoenix to represent myself, as a phoenix is a memorable symbol that's eye-catching and bold, representing my passion for winning. I gave out phoenix badges, phoenix posters and I also presented my speech using a power point (funny pictures included). I believe these strategies were successful because it shows how enthusiastic and determined I am to do this job. Lastly, for those who are thinking of running as Student Shura, these are a few words of advice!

"Don't bribe them with sweets. Influence them with your words. Influence them with your speeches. Influence them with your voice. It's not impossible, just challenging!"

Good luck to our newly elected Student Shura for the year ahead!

Parliament Visit

Ms Hasan and the student leaders took a motivational trip to the houses of Parliament in November.

The students were given a tour of the building and learned about the laws that were actually passed in this historic building.

It was an eye opener for a lot of students and some commented on how they would consider a career in politics. Watch out Theresa May!

AROUND THE WORLD

EDEN BRINGS YOU MIND BOGGLING STORIES FROM ACROSS THE GLOBE

America, Trump Triumphs over Clinton

After months of constant speculation, the results are finally in. For months it had been Clinton vs Trump. Now he's President-elect Trump. Held on November 8, 2016, this election – along with its result – is said to be the most intense and gripping election to date, with countries and people across the globe following the campaign trails of both candidates.

Somewhere in the Sky, USA Bon Jovi & Clinton Mannequin

Hillary Clinton, the Democratic presidential candidate, was filmed on board her campaign jet taking part in the 'mannequin challenge'.

In the footage, journalists stare at their mobile phone screens or appear to be engaged in conversation with colleagues, Bill Clinton just about holds his smile together in front of the camera, and the Bon Jovi frontman looks set to burst into song.

The group then erupt into cheers after around 30 seconds as Mrs Clinton smiles and laughs with her campaign team.

Horsels, Denmark 'Stuck in An Adjustable Desk'

A man in his 30s had to be rescued by fire-fighters this week after he became stuck in a height-adjustable desk.

Emergency workers responding to a call in the Danish city of Horsens had to use a battering ram to gain access to the stricken man's home and free him from his furniture.

Barnsley, England White Rabbit

West London, UK

Mysterious 'white rabbit' appears
Over the last year, a six-foot-tall white rabbit (or, more accurately, a man in a rabbit costume) has been turning up in the same spot in west London on the first day of the month

With a colourful striped scarf around his neck, he appears close to Barnes Bridge, where he waves at motorists, sometimes with props or wearing themed additions to his rabbit costume

United Kingdom 'Skunk Lock your Bikes'

Is your bicycle lock good enough? Do you feel your bike is truly safe when you leave it out on the street?

Daniel Idzkowski, an inventor and entrepreneur, thinks he may have the answer. He is co-creator of the SkunkLock – an innovative security device that promises to make anyone attempting to make off with your bike, vomit.

Describing the effects of the compound, Mr Idzkowski told the Guardian: "At two feet it was pretty bad. It was absolutely vomit-inducing in 99 per cent of people. At five feet it's very noticeable and the initial reaction is to move away from it. At 10ft it's definitely detectable and very unpleasant."

Brisbane, Australia Koala Found at Customs

A baby koala was found in a woman's backpack after she was arrested during a routine traffic stop.

As officers searched her they asked if she had anything to declare.

She handed over a zipped green canvas bag and said there was a joey inside that she had found the night before and she was looking after it

The koala is believed to be about six months old

Edinburgh Scotland Trapped Rhino

Firefighters have described "one of the strangest" rescue missions of their careers - helping a rhino at Edinburgh Zoo with a toothache.

Newcraighall fire station's crew were needed to move two-ton Bertus the Rhino to a safe place in which vets could operate. The eight-year-old animal was first sedated and then winched to safety in a challenging and complicated process.

TRIPS THIS TERM

A CHILLING TALE FROM JB PRIESTLY

Back in June I had come across adverts showing the upcoming multi award winning An Inspector Calls coming back to the West End and I booked it in a heartbeat- a fantastic decision!

Year 10 visited The Playhouse Theatre to watch this famous and fabulous edition of JB Priestley's classic play (the Director is multi-Oscar nominated!). It was a terrifically entertaining evening of fantastic acting from the cast (Mrs Birling being my favourite!) and the set design was also superb. It included a house on stilts, indoor rain, several loud and shocking explosions as well as the terrific crashing of the house towards the end of the play.

Not only was it a highly enjoyable and culturally enriching day out, the students learnt a huge deal from watching the play on stage and it heightened the interest in the play even more, evidenced in excited discussions as we travelled home that evening.

A SUMMER AFTERNOON WITH JANE AUSTEN

On a wonderfully sunny Wednesday afternoon in early September, 10.1 were off to an exciting afternoon soaking up the sun and spending some time in the 19th Century watching a stage production of the fabulous Pride and Prejudice at Regents Park.

It was a first time visit to a theatre for many of our students, and this time we were experiencing theatre in a more unconventional way: outdoors.

All the elements of the story were magically brought to life through the brilliant acting of the cast as well as the enchanting stage set up which included a rotating stage, a balcony, perfectly and naturally placed leaves for those outdoor scenes as well as keeping space for the balls and piano playing that was such a pleasure to watch.

The students highly enjoyed the story and the experience, with great discussion taking place on the train back to school, especially laughing at the hilarious characters of Mr and Mrs Bennett!

EID BBQ

Food, games and loads of fun-what more could we want?

On Friday 16th September, Eden celebrated Eid-ul-Adha together, as one big family. We were encouraged to dress up in our prettiest clothes, and to bring in at least £1 for charity. The day was a huge success and students participated in various activities, such as knocking down piñatas and filling our tummies with delicious sweets and chocolates- Yum! But still, that wasn't the highlight of the fabtastic event- Eden staff treated us to our very own barbecue! The food was delicious, ranging from mouth-watering chicken to yummy burgers, and everyone from staff to students enjoyed this day.

CHILDREN IN NEED

Children in Need provide grants to projects in the UK which focus on children and young people who are disadvantaged. Currently they are supporting 2,400 projects all across the UK.

To do our part, Eden has been supporting Children in Need for the past 3 years. This year we hosted a competitive bake sale, and a fun yellow themed non-uniform day to contribute and raise funds for this fabulous cause. Thank you to all for their generous donations.

LOOK HOW MUCH WE HAVE RAISED!

This term we have raised a whopping £1718 through Children in Need, Macmillan Cancer Morning and are currently taking part in three more campaigns supporting homeless people in our community, a women's refuge centre and orphans in Syria. We thank you all for your continuous support. None of this would be possible without you.

National Poetry Day

6th Oct. 2016

In order to celebrate National Poetry Day, the English department launched a poetry competition in which the main theme of it was a 'message to someone'. But why is National Poetry Day celebrated? National Poetry Day is celebrated every year on the first Thursday in October for poets, poetry fans and poetry organisations to enjoy and participate in for whatever reason. From pouring their feelings onto paper to summarising a story they read into a poem. The competition entries ranged from students from year 7 to year 10. In first place we had Atifa Dukhanwala (year 8) with her poem 'I was once a person'. In second place we had Badriyah Islam (Year 9) with her poem 'The Two of Us' and in third place we had Rufaydah Asim (Year 9) with her poem 'A Message To The Media'. Here we have the winners telling us about their inspirations.

"Inspiration struck me at really weird times. At 5 AM after being rudely awakened. At lunch, when I'm only trying to peacefully eat my sandwich. Or whilst I'm in the shower. All slightly awkward times. But they were mostly just random thoughts or ideas that came to me in no particular sequence yet I still wrote them all down - well, the good ones at least. I've always enjoyed writing; just letting your words spill onto the paper. I've written books that may never get published, but that's okay. When you are writing a book, it's not just writing your thoughts. It's creating people. It's creating an alternate universe to ours. You have the power to destroy a life, but to also make a new one. In my poem, I created two people. A girl and a boy. The poem is about how the boy treats the girl as though she has no importance. My inspiration came from nowhere in general. It was just a thought turned into words."

-Atifa Dukhanwala

"I didn't have much of an inspiration for my poem, and the little bit of inspiration I did have wasn't very ... exciting. Me being me, was watching a Korean drama one night, and the last scene of the last episode was of notes the two leads wrote to each other. That scene was constantly on my mind, so I got out my notebook, and just wrote! When I came to school the next morning, Ms Patel had launched the poetry competition - as soon as I came home I rummaged through pages and pages till I found the poem, and submitted it, hoping it would be okay to at least enter the top 10. "

-Badriyah Islam

"I just really wanted a way to get my feelings out there even if the whole world wasn't hearing it, at least someone was. With all the controversy about a women's body, I just wanted to put out there what is really important, the fact that a women's looks do not define her and that she is more than what you just see on the outside. I just really wrote down what my true feelings were, I mean if I wasn't going to put the truth out there then there was really no point to put anything out there. "

-Rufaydah Asim

"The Two of Us"- (Badriyah Islam)

It was all in the past,
The sweet, sweet past,
Filled with memories with just,
The two of us.

But you walked and smiled with me,
hand in hand just you and me.
I'd not think of anything else,
Other than -
The two of us

But why didn't I tell you this?
That you'd made me feel like this?

That I was joyful, ecstatic and happy!
Ever so happy with just -
The two of us.

But no, I don't think of you...
Not your hair, not your care, none of you
And you're not here anymore, I'm Alone by myself, when it used to be both,
The two of us.

But we are living in the past,
The sour, the cold, the bitter past,
Filled with memories of,

I was a Person. (Atifah Dukhanwala)

Before I met you,
I was a person.
Believe it or not,
I had thoughts and complexities
Beyond your existence.
As we spoke,
I shocked you with my openness,
An openness I tried to transmit
Across all my relationships and interactions,
Because I hate keeping track
Of who I told what.

But you thought you were special,
That you'd given me this gift
Of light in darkness,
A single companion to embark on my journey.
You thought you were my answer,
That I needed you,
But haven't you realised by now
I'm more than the questions I possess?

Things I wish I could tell the media. (Rufaydah Asim)

We grew up hearing,
You're Mamas pretty girl!
Her angel
Her Baby
Her star
Her world

But if this is true-If this is fact
Then why did I hear
"You're not good enough"
"You're not pretty enough"
"You're too fat"
"You're too thin"
I may as well stop trying

Why should I care Media?
Why should I care what they think?
Because nothing hurts more than someone point out what is wrong with you

We're either the good little girl
Or something gone wrong
Either too thick or too thin
Either too fat or too skinny
We either eat too much or not enough
Why can't you hear us?
Why can't you listen to what we have to say?

We have a woman's body
We're not sorry for that

My questions do not need an answer,
Don't you ever ask just to hear your words released into the atmosphere,
Setting your mind free from the confines of their binary?
Don't you ever speak just to see what might happen?
My words don't have as much weight as you think. But I'm too serious,
Holding onto something that you claim just isn't there,
Where you're just casual,
Never struck by casualties in this warfare.
You say you're here for my convenience,
Because surely without you I would wilt like an illnurt-ured flower,
And you're obligated to care for me.

I'm not looking for answers, don't you see?
Of all the questions I've thrown out into the universe,
The least relevant pertain to you and me.
My body is deteriorating and no one can tell me why
And you think my greatest tragedy would be in your goodbye.

This is the body we were given
So how can you shame us like that?

These full lips
These killer curves
These bodacious hips
We were blessed with these gifts
So how can you say these mean things
These questions aren't out of spite
But-I just wish you'd contemplate what you say about us

Because we women need to learn to live in harmony
Not knock each other down
Divide and Conquer
I tried not to let this bother me but I can't anymore
That's how people knock us down
They make you feel shameful about the skin that you're in

Our Mama said to us
You're Mamas pretty girl!
Her angel
Her baby
Her star
Her world
But if this is true-If this is fact

Then why do you hurt us like that?
